Barbecue in any weather

A barbecue hut is usually a polygonal wooden hut in various sizes. There is a fire or barbecue area in the centre. It is originated in Scandinavia. The natives of Lapland lived in such huts.

The barbecue kotas provide the perfect setting for a rustic evening with family, friends or colleagues. Four kotas for up to 8 people and one large kota for up to 20 people are at your disposal.

If the weather is suitable, we place seating directly in front of the kota and you decide whether you want to sit inside or outside. The team will provide you with crockery, cutlery, glasses and charcoal and everything else you need.

At the start time, we light the charcoal and all you have to do is put the food on the barbecue. Enjoy your evening undisturbed. We take care of the final cleaning.

You take care of the barbecue food and drinks yourself or order them from us. Chilled drinks, e.g. draught beer, good wines, non-alcoholic drinks, are available onrequest and are charged separately (selection on request).
